Amsterdam Man Marries North Tonawanda Girl

Miss Donna Marie Everitt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Everitt, North Tonawanda, was married to Michael Francis Techmanski, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Techmanski, 25 Slater St., at a nuptial mass in St. Joseph's Church, North Tonawanda, at noon Saturday, Aug. 29. The Rev. William C. McGarry officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The altar was adorned with white gladioli and mums and the family pews were marked with mums, and green satin bows. A white runner carpeted the center aisle.

Traditional wedding music was played by the church organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an Empire gown of white organza over taffeta with a standup ruffle at the neckline, long sleeves trimmed with reembrodered Alencon lace accented with strings of pearls and fitted A-line skirt ending in a chapel train. Her long French silk illusion veil was caught to an open crown of lace and pearls and she carried a colonial bouquet of white daisies.

Mrs. Patrick A. Quinlan was matron of honor for her sister and another sister, Miss Denise Everitt, was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Deborah Delamater, Amsterdam, and Miss Corinne Potaczala, North Tonawanda, and Miss Barbara Briggs, Horseheads, cousins of the bride, and junior bridesmaid was Miss Kathryn Lynn Stopka, North Tonawanda.

The attendants were all gowned in white organza with green satin stripes and green satin sashes and wore green bow headpieces. They carried bouquets of garden flowers with green streamers, the matron of honor's in shades of coral and yellow and the others in blue, green and lavender.

John L. Sikora, Amsterdam, was best man and Dennis Sullivan, Patrick Quinlan, Paul Wolfe and Sam Palazzole were ushers.

The mother of the bride wore an ivory brocade coat and dress ensemble with bone accessories while the mother of the bridegroom was attired in champagne Alencon lace over satin with champagne accessories. Both wore corsages of mums.

A reception was held at St. Joseph's parish hall after which the couple left on a wedding trip to Canada and New England.

Mrs. Techmanski was graduated magna cum laude from State University of New York at Buffalo, with a bachelor of science degree in pharmacy.

The bridegroom is also a graduate of State University of New York at Buffalo and is presently working for his master's degree in psychology at California State University at Long Beach, Calif.

The couple will reside in Long Beach until Mr. Techmanski obtains his degree.

Bridal Vows Exchanged In Methodist Ceremony

The United Methodist Church on Division Street was the setting Aug. 15 of the wedding of Miss Jacqueline Ruth Adamson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Adamson, 18 Ellsworth St., and Daniel Lee Delarm, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Delarm, 13 Jonathan Lane. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, the Rev. Grover B. Jay.

Vases of white gladioli, chrysanthemums and pompons decorated the church.

Mrs. Ernest Robinson, organist, played traditional wedding selections and the soloist was Miss Donna Dence.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a full length gown of white crepe over taffeta with fitted bodice of Venise lace, long puffed sleeves with deep lace cuffs and detachable cathedral length train edged with matching lace. From her crown of Venise lace petals and rosettes studded with crystals fell a bouffant veil and her bouquet was of white roses, miniature carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath finished with strands of ivy.

The bride's sister, Miss Karen Adamson, was maid of honor and Mrs. William Adamson, sister-in-law of the bride, and Miss Karen Colinas were bridesmaids. Miss Sandra Delarm, sister of the bridegroom, served as flower girl.

The maid of honor was dressed in lavender satin crepe, the bridesmaids in eggshell and the flower girl in yellow. The attendants carried cascade bouquets of orchid pompons, miniature carnations, baby's breath and ivy tied with streamers and the flower girl carried a basket of white and yellow miniature carnations and pompons with white and yellow streamers.

Serving as best man was Steven Wojcik, Hagaman, and as ushers, Roy Delarm Jr. and Larry Delarm, brothers of the bridegroom, and William Adamson and Robert Adamson, brothers of the bride. Robert J. Colinas was junior usher.

Mrs. Adamson wore a blue nylon crepe dress and matching whimsy and the bridegroom's mother chose a pink moire dress and pink whimsy. Both wore corsages of white glameillas.

A reception in Fellowship Hall of the church followed the ceremony.

The couple went to Bermuda for a wedding trip. The bride wore for going away a navy linen coat and dress ensemble and a corsage of white roses.

The bridegroom's parents entertained at a rehearsal dinner at the Sleepy Dutchman the night before the wedding.

Mrs. Delarm is a graduate of Lynch High School, Fulton-Montgomery Community College and Antrim, N.H. She is employed as an art teacher in the Greater Amsterdam School District.

Mr. Delarm is also a Lynch High School graduate and is employed by the D. A. Collins Construction Co., Albany.

The couple will reside at 15 Ellsworth St.

Pick Right Tree for Right Job

Selecting the right tree for the right use and location is as important as selecting the right workman for your home repairs.

The fact that a tree is pretty or that the same kind is thriving in a neighbor's yard is no indication that it will fulfill your needs.

Before selecting any tree, you must have definite answers to two questions:

1. What will be the primary use of the tree?
2. What are the soil and climate conditions of the planting site?

In many cases, you will have multiple answers to the first question, but you must rank them in order of priority. Which is most important to you, shade or privacy, a windbreak or enhancing the beauty of your home?

If the primary purpose of the tree is to enhance the appearance of your house, you need to study the outside dimensions of the house. Tall trees will dwarf a single story house, but you need some landscaping height around a house with two or more full stories.

You should also consider the size of the house in relation to the size of the lot. It seems to crowd the boundary lines, keep your landscaping low and simple. If there is a considerable amount of lawn, larger trees will give unity to the entire lot.

Many trees can serve dual purposes well. A pin oak grown to maturity, for instance, can shade a patio, provide privacy from the eyes of a neighboring apartment building, and add to the beauty of the neighborhood, as well.

Also consider the shapes that would be most suitable to your site. Would you prefer the informality of a weeping willow or a sour gum, the roundness of a sugar maple, the slenderness of a Lombardy poplar, or the airy, vase shape of an American elm?

The type and texture of leaves is another factor that will have a bearing on the appearance of your yard. Evergreens tend to look heavy and strongly weighted to the ground. Elms and locusts have small leaves and are light in appearance. Horse chestnuts and sycamores have large leaves and appear massive.

You may have special needs, which will require trees with special characteristics. For instance, a corkscrew willow or an Amur maple is good for a small area where you need shade. White pines and Norway spruce are good screening trees. A redbud, dogwood, or Japanese maple is ideal for adding color and beauty to an area limited in space.

On the question of soil and climate, consider how much sun and rain the tree is likely to get. What is the nature of the soil — is it predominately sand or clay, or are there lots of rocks in the ground?

Evergreens, in general, are not good in heavily shaded areas. Weeping willows and sugar maples will thrive in a moist location. The ash, the cedar, and the cypress are ah good in areas of heavy smog.

The American Association of Nurserymen makes these suggestions for purchasing any tree:

1. Select a tree for its size at maturity, not that at the time of purchase.
2. Consider the amount of maintenance that will be necessary. Fruit trees will need spraying several times each season, while a honey locust or a sweet gum requires almost no attention at all. Leaf beetles are apt to infest elms, scale is common on tulip trees, and leaf miner often infests gray birch.
3. Find out about the habits of the tree. Poplars and willows have roots that often disrupt flower beds and break pipes. Norway maple and beech have roots that make good lawn almost impossible in the vicinity.

Regardless of your needs, your local nurseryman can help you find the tree that will do the job. Depend on his expert advice in making your selection, because you'll be living with your tree for a long time.

Mrs. Garry J. Silk
Patricia Henderson

Miss Henderson, Canton, Bride of Garry J. Silk

Miss Patricia Ann Henderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Henderson, Canton, was married to Garry James Silk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold J. Silk, 89 Clizbe Ave., Aug. 8 at 4 p.m. in the Trinity Episcopal Church, Potsdam. The Rev. Cannon James Pennock officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of imported organza designed with an Empire waist, short puffed sleeves and slightly belled skirt, bands of Venise lace threaded with white satin ribbon highlighting the neckline, front of the gown and chapel length train. Her fingertip veil fell from a Camolet cap of lace and she carried a Bible on which was arranged one long-stemmed white rose with white satin streamers.

Miss Mary Anderson, Jamestown, was maid of honor and serving as bridesmaids were the bridegroom's sister, Miss Pamela Silk, Miss Sandra Lee, Canton, Miss Judith Specht, Jamestown and Miss Marilyn Quattrone, Solvay. Miss Rebecca Collins, Canton was junior bridesmaid.

The attendants wore gowns of turquoise flowered voile with matching turquoise picture hats and carried baskets of turquoise, yellow and white daisies cascaded with turquoise ribbons. The junior attendant wore a long white gown styled similar to the bride's and carried a single long-stemmed white rose.

John Robert Toranto, was best man for Mr. Silk. Ushers were Michael Congdon, Timothy Smith, Christopher Christiansen and Harold Borrman, cousin of the bride.

The mother of the bride chose an ensemble of yellow crepe and carried a cymbidium orchid. The mother of the bridegroom wore a turquoise dress and jacket ensemble with matching accessories and carried a purse corsage of white roses.

A reception was held at Fiacco's Restaurant following the ceremony. A rehearsal dinner was given Friday evening by the bridegroom's parents.

The bride is a graduate of State University College at Ballston Spa High School.

Mr. Silk, an alumnus of Lynch High School holds a bachelor of science degree in mechanical engineering from Clarkson College of Technology and is a service engineer in the operating nuclear plants project at Knolls Atomic Laboratory, Schenectady.

The couple will reside at Parkwood Village, Clifton Park.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My elderly mother has lived with me for three years. She is bedridden, completely helpless and is suffering from an incurable disease. In order to give her the care she needs, my husband and I have had to give up all vacations, most of our social life, not to mention the financial sacrifices we've made. It would be an act of mercy to give her "something" to put her out of her misery, and hasten her death.

What advice can you give me? Wouldn't it be humane to put an end to all this suffering?

UNCERTAIN

DEAR UNCERTAIN: Whose? Hers or yours? Doctors can do much to make a terminal patient comfortable. But to "put her out of her misery" as one would a dog, is clearly illegal. And for good reasons.

Giving a person the "legal right" to terminate the life of another under some circumstances may be "humane." But because that right could be abused for selfish gain, society must be protected against it.

DEAR ABBY: I am married to a wonderful, generous, warmhearted man, I know he loves me, and I love him. In spite of this, I have a problem. (I am wondering how many other women are classified as "frigid" for the same reason.)

I cannot touch, hug, kiss or show any affection toward my husband without him wanting to jump into bed. When he comes home after work, I have to be careful not to give him too warm of a "welcome home kiss" or I'd never get my dinner on the table. Consequently, if I keep out of his reach, he accuses me of being a "cold fish."

Abby, we are not children. My husband is in his late fifties and I am in my late forties. Believe me, he has always gotten and still gets his share of affection, but I say enough is enough. I'd like your opinion.

DEAR TIRED: I'm with you. Don't tell me "enough is enough." Tell him.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow and my problem is a gentleman who is a longtime friend of a relative. He keeps calling and inviting me out, and I keep putting him off. He's a nice person and has admirable qualities, and I would really like to know him better, but Abby, I am ashamed to be seen with him because of the way he dresses.

His trousers are baggy, and hang way down over his shoes. He will wear the jacket of one suit and the trousers of another. I'm sure he's neat and clean but he has no taste in clothes whatsoever.

This man has plenty of money, so I can't understand why he doesn't keep up with the times. I have hinted around, and even offered him some of my late husband's clothes as they were about the same size, but he thanked me, saying he had more clothes than he could wear. (I believe it. I'm sure he hasn't given anything away in 30 years.) Any advice?

NAMELESS
DEAR NAMELESS: If you would like to know this gentleman better, but keep putting him off because of the way he dresses, shame on you. Clothes don't really make the man...

... they just make the man look better. There are plenty of snappy dressers around, but a "nice person with admirable qualities" is hard to find. Accept his invitation and if you'd like to see more of him, gently educate him toward a little more stylishness.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WANTS TO KNOW": There is no law stating a physician may not deliver his own children, but most physicians prefer not to.

Mrs. Stephen J. Osusky
Mary Valachovic

Nuptial Ceremony Held In Johnstown Church

Miss Mary J. Valachovic, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis F. Valachovic, Johnstown, formerly of Amsterdam, became the bride of Stephen J. Osusky, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen L. Osusky, Johnstown, at noon Saturday, Aug. 29, in the Immaculate Conception Church in Johnstown, the Rev. John L. Mosconi officiating.

White chrysanthemums decorated the altar. Wedding music was provided by Mrs. Rose Marie Pane, Johnstown, organist, and Mrs. Patricia Albanese, Gloversville, vocal soloist.

The bride, given in marriage by her father wore a gown of white Chantilly lace and chiffon organza embellished with lace scrolls and sequins featuring a full length train. A double crown of seed pearls held her elbow length veil and she carried a cascade bouquet of Eucharis lilies, Sweetheart roses and calladium foliage.

The bridegroom wore a suit of white Chantilly lace and chiffon organza embellished with lace scrolls and sequins featuring a full length train. A double crown of seed pearls held her elbow length veil and she carried a cascade bouquet of Eucharis lilies, Sweetheart roses and calladium foliage.

The bridal attendants were Miss Mary Ann Jurica, Miss Mary Jo Rizzio, cousin of the bride, and Miss Caroline Frank, who were attired in apricot silk chiffon with accents of burnt orange and matching forward caps with veils. They carried cascade bouquets of wheat, melon colored pompons and yellow Sweetheart roses.

Joel Havlicek, Johnstown, served as best man and ushers were Frank Gross, Johnstown, cousin of the bridegroom, and Anthony R. Valachovic, brother of the bride.

The mother of the bride wore a dress of jubilee pink silk and the bridegroom's mother was attired in robin's egg blue.

Following a reception at the Rainbow Restaurant, Johnstown, Mr. and Mrs. Osusky left on a trip to Niagara Falls and Canada. For going away, the bride wore a bone and brown crepe dress with bone accessories.

The couple will reside at 7 Nicholas St., Johnstown.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Osusky are graduates of Johnstown High School. She is employed by the General Telephone Co. of Upstate New York and he is employed by the General Electric Co., Schenectady.
